October 4, 2021

Please find attached the OACAS submission on proposed regulatory changes to support the implementation of Ontario's Quality Standards Framework found in both the Minister's and the Lieutenant Governor in Council's Regulations.

This submission was prepared by OACAS, together with a small working group of children's aid society Directors of Service and Resource Managers. The submission contains member feedback as well as youth feedback received in four ways:

- Through three ministry-facilitated engagement sessions hosted by OACAS throughout September 2021;
- Through dialogue with the working group;
- Through engagement with former youth in care facilitated by OACAS; and
- Through a survey that OACAS issued to its members.

With this submission, sector staff and youth from care offer general support for some areas, concern for other areas, questions or requests for clarification, and suggested alternatives. Specifically, the submission contains the following components:

1. Detailed feedback on specific proposals (attached chart broken down by regulation and section)
2. Common themes expressed throughout engagement sessions by staff and by youth (summarized below)
3. Recommendations of alternative practice or requirements (attached chart and summarized below)
4. Implementation considerations (attached chart and summarized below; note provincial CPIN leads have provided feedback and supported the development of this submission)

OACAS and its members appreciate the opportunity to provide feedback and expert insights to the government on these important proposals.

1. Detailed feedback on specific proposals (attached chart)

2. A) Common themes expressed by staff throughout engagement sessions

- General support for the intent of the proposed amendments
- Proposed timelines – particularly seven days – are too restrictive given the urgency and complexity of placement circumstances and may result in staff non-compliance (exception: broad support for keeping the 7-day requirement regarding safety plans)
- Concern that safety planning for every child is unnecessary and maybe stigmatizing; however, children/youth deemed 'higher risk' risk exclusion and need same opportunities as their peers
- Plan of Care requirements are deficit-focused, should be strength-based and start with who the child is
- New requirements seem almost entirely focused on mitigating OPR actions/issues – if so, this focus should be made explicit
- Accountability between placing agencies and OPRs not well-understood results in a negative impact on children and youth
- Broad support for approved departures, intent on ensuring dignity for youth transitioning between placements or home
- Clarity is needed regarding the definition of 'education,' OPR models involving educational programs
- Broad support for finding placements where all of child's/youth's needs can be met. However, equal concern regarding the disconnect between new requirements (e.g. pre-placement assessment) and the reality of the system:
  - crisis-driven, urgent decision-making
  - a limited and shrinking pool of placement options, and existing caregivers will not have the capacity to meet requirements
  - prohibitions on placements where all needs cannot be met will be severely destabilizing
  - pre-placement checks and balances will not be actionable
- Broad support for exemptions to requirements in emergency admissions
- Strong insistence on better collaboration with children's mental health – already poor, worsened by COVID
- Privacy considerations need clarification, particularly regarding pre-placement assessment involving multiple outside parties
- Broad support for new educational requirements for OPR staff
- Concern that repeated information on the rules surrounding physical restraints sends the wrong message to young people impedes relationship-building (particularly for care settings that do not practice restraints)
- Concern that requirements left to agencies individually (such as training for caregivers) will lead to inconsistent service experiences and outcomes across the province

B) Common themes expressed by youth through engagement

- Youth cannot bear the burden of poor Plan of Care planning
- Youth must have an active part in developing Plan of Care
- Pre-service training for caregivers is essential, particularly for serving the diverse cultural and identity needs of children and youth

- Ask youth what they need and want, do not assume or make decisions without them
- Children and youth need a trusted, impartial advocate in their corner

3. Recommendations of alternative practice or requirements (attached chart and summarized below)

- Plan of Care should be required within 30 days rather than 7
- Plan of Care: move letter (i) to the top of the list
- Case management: add 'traditional healing and wellness' to section 3
- Case management: replace 'support child to obtain' with 'acknowledgement of efforts underway, navigating system to get documents'
- Case management: ministry to work with Registrar General, Passport Canada, Service Ontario and others to facilitate the earlier obtainment of identification documents, liaise with societies/wellbeing agencies to expedite the process; build on the model of CWICE and develop a provincial approach; consider models from other jurisdictions (e.g. The Promise of Scotland)
- Plan of Care: document efforts to obtain identification documents in Plan of Care
- Education: add specifics to the section on the suitable study area, including a proper surface to study/work on, adequate school supplies, adequate access to technology and internet connectivity, support by a trusted adult as needed
- Pre-placement safety assessment: OPR should be responsible for calling safety planning meetings at any point during youth's stay, not just before placement and inclusive of the actual context of care setting
- Pre-service training for foster parent applicants and foster parents:
  - Amend language to a minimum number of hours to also include ongoing learning and development in areas of FNIM and Trauma-informed
  - Amend to include EDI learning and FNIM and Trauma-informed to be inclusive of other identities and/or intersecting identities with FNIM. This would complement trauma-informed and FNIM learnings.
- Other minor enhancements – shared rooms: change use of gender definitions as these pertain to shared rooms to be inclusive of LGBT2SQ+ identities

4. Implementation Considerations (attached chart and summarized below)

- CPIN does not support the majority of proposed changes
- Unrealistic to draw upon the same community service providers and partners on so many occasions for planning and transition purposes
- Part X considerations are not clear for some new requirements
- Licensing reviewers will need significant orientation to avoid policy intent being lost, and agencies found non-compliant
- Significant administrative burden added to staff and caregivers creates a barrier for relationship-focused care
- Internet gaps, lack of technology for some Indigenous and remote communities must be prioritized by the government – across ministries and with the sector - with funds; COVID-19 strategies can be built on
- The government needs to bolster and expand the pool of available placement options
- Risk is being downloaded to agencies/societies from OPR gaps

- Pre-service education may inadvertently add to current challenges in the recruitment and retention of qualified/experienced caregivers
- Timelines:
  - Include a timeline of implementation of foster parent learning plans that is cognizant of other regulation implementation timelines that also require the participation of foster parents, i.e. more than 30 days will be required
  - Where it's stated, 'within a specified timeline,' clarity needed – who decides?
- Ministry collaboration is needed to develop trauma-informed training with mental health providers – locally and provincially
- Funding/partnership to support youth mentor implementation, similar to Education Liaison funding for each agency, do the same for paid youth mentors at individual agencies provincially. Joint initiative perhaps with other ministries as it pertains to identity, culture, race, wellness/MH, and community connections.

Not true for foster homes in same way</li> <li>- Downloading risk onto agencies stemming from child deaths</li> <li>- Hard for CPIN agency to communicate with non-CPIN</li> </ul>
---	---	-------------	--	--	--

			<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>- Do the regs require the placement meet ALL of the child's needs known at time of admission? Rarely if ever able to do that at that time; it's the best of potential options we're considering, keeping in mind the pool of resources is shrinking rapidly and options fewer each day</li><li>- Especially when it's OPR care – needs are complex, wrap services around...looking for the best available within existing resources</li><li>- Opioid deaths happen in the middle of night: trying to find a foster parent with all those needs, it won't happen (kids will end up staying at office with workers) – yes to exemption for emergency – ALL needs won't be met</li><li>- Agree with earlier points: finding the placement that meets child's needs is what we all want, but reality – at least months since agencies can choose among options; searching 50 homes and not finding more than one; huge flexibility and creativity needed to make plans successful – we need to move toward this (safety, cultural/emotional needs etc.) but there aren't options for that – really critical and a reg would make this more difficult, even if it's of course the goal</li><li>- Is there a provincial strategy to build capacity? Regs in place without resources, we will make the problem worse</li></ul>
--	--	--	---	--	--

			<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- Ministry response: CWR, QSF is only one aspect – well heard point; there are other projects working to support outside of regs</li> <li>- Need to know strategy for new players, resources – have heard nothing</li> <li>- Can't stress enough, and things are worsened by COVID</li> <li>- Need to include collaboration with mental health – the mental health of kids in care is deeply affected</li> <li>- We'll be looking for exemptions in almost everything in the meantime</li> <li>- COVID: we think the foster situation is bad now, it's going to get worse – those needing to be double vaxxed will have local impacts</li> <li>- The regs are so extensive – makes your head spin</li> <li>- So much to say – caregivers will not have everything that's being required</li> </ul> Sector feedback: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- Not every agency is on CPIN and those who are do things differently</li> <li>- Concern that we are putting our 'higher risk' c&amp;y under a 'different microscope' which is inconsistent with your goals</li> <li>- Should be for every child, be consistent and if not applicable, shouldn't be adding scrutiny to higher-risk youth – unconsciously it will become a tool to exclude kids (too stressful, trouble) and re-placement will follow</li> </ul>
--	--	--	--	--	--

			<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- On the other hand, this sounds like a meaningless bureaucratic exercise; all of these regs do not support the outcomes we're looking for; these things will definitely become reasons to exclude kids</li> <li>- Where no safety risk, why bother documenting?</li> <li>- Strong support for these comments</li> </ul> Recommendations for better: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>- given the tragedies that have taken place: should be a requirement not just prior to placement, but OPR should be responsible to call a safety planning meeting at any point; also, children often at OPR from many different placing organizations – should be a requirement where there is some sort of communication re. resources in place to support the safety needs of all the kids and known to each placing org (a collective responsibility) – individual lens is totally insufficient (but feels like it's a 'real disconnect from the reality we are living)</li> <li>- re. child's behaviour that poses a risk</li> <li>- Worry about how these behaviours are defined</li> <li>- receiving alt care needs to know before taking kid in, however consultation process won't be complete by placement</li> <li>- who to consult with: individual signatures of each person confirming agreement?</li> <li>- general agreement with the safety plan, but impossible to implement as drafted</li> </ul>
--	--	--	---	--	--
